View files and edit in a single-file system in the same way as on-screen. Get your latest changes on screen quickly without switching back and forth. To-scale drawing options in the Preferences dialog. Use internal or external anchors for breaking line attributes or style sets. The center of a design object or the lower-left corner of a line set will always be the initial origin point. Put a custom label at the center of a block. Fix your model in two steps. First, remove all auxiliary files and command history. Then fix errors and missing parts. Make one-click updates to your drawings. Insight Ruler: How do you know when it is too early to start drawing? With the new Insight Ruler. With the Insight Ruler, designers can easily see in real time how far into the future their model will be when they start drawing. The Insight Ruler displays the amount of time remaining for the drawing process. The bar changes color depending on whether the drawing or modeling tools are enabled. (video: 1:15 min.) Inspired by time in the clock, the Insight Ruler can also be used as a watch. By pressing and holding down a key, the Insight Ruler can be used like a watch. Preface Dialog: Shared folder protection is now available in AutoCAD on Mac. AutoCAD saves a history of your important drawing and editing actions. If you need to return to the same previous state, the Preface Dialog ("back" button in the bottom left corner of the dialog) lets you quickly select a previous drawing from the history. Rasterizing NURBS with Polyline / Spline: With the new polyline/spline capabilities, you can quickly and easily work with surfaces that use spline functions. Work with the most efficient rasterizing mode. Rasterize your model as a polyline using the spline dialog or directly from the command line. (video: 1:18 min.) Speed up and improve your productivity by having more control over the rasterization process. Easily adapt the rasterization settings for any type of surface. Rasterize with the dynamic line width setting. Rasterize with a set line width for curved, complex spline surfaces,
