Download .A new educational exchange program has been launched between adult prisoners and kindergarten children. LEHIGH COUNTY, Pa. — The Make-A-Wish Foundation and the Indiana University Center for Leadership in Prison Education started a new educational exchange program, connecting 14 kindergarten students to prisoners in Delaware County, Pennsylvania. The program, called “Prisoners and Kindergarteners Together,” took place at the prison in Dallas, Pennsylvania. It was first launched in 2016 and it led to the creation of the “Positive Prisoner-to-Kindergarten Connections” curriculum. The new program ended in June, but that doesn’t stop the two organizations from continuing the exchange. “The goal,” said Tonya Taylor, the Prisoners and Kindergarteners Together program leader, “is to end the stigma associated with education behind bars and show that education is truly a benefit to prisoners and society.” All the students participating in the program were from Philadelphia and Delaware counties. None of them were prisoners. “The children were very excited and eager to meet these people who have been locked up," said Dan Stapleton, president of the Make-A-Wish Foundation. "The prisoners were a big hit with the students. They found them to be very friendly and at the end of the day they started to cry because they could tell the students how much they loved them." One of the prisoners who the students met was 21-year-old Sayvon Rodd, who was sentenced to 3 to 5 years in prison in 2005 for attempted murder and robbery. He's since served a total of five years and nine months, and has since graduated from high school and gone on to attend college. "I wanted the opportunity to be part of something like this," said Rodd, "Because there are so many things I'd like to do but can't." At the end of the day, the students said that the experience left them feeling happy and hopeful about their future. "I want to be a teacher when I grow up," e79caf774b
